QUESTIONS FOR CARERS TO ASK ABOUT WORK AND CANCER

Work and cancer series – for carers
Work was full on and very busy. I was at that point beginning to realise just how bogged down with everything I was getting. And I figured that maybe some help might be useful.

Prue, who cared for her husband Dave when he was diagnosed with prostate cancer

About this leaflet

This leaflet has questions you may need to ask about work issues if you are a working carer. A working carer is anyone who works while providing unpaid support to a partner, family member or friend with cancer, who could not manage without this support.

Balancing working and caring responsibilities is not always easy. We hope this leaflet makes you feel more confident about dealing with any workplace issues you might have.

Some of the questions in this leaflet may not be relevant to you. You do not have to read it from start to finish. You can use it to focus on the questions that apply to your situation.

We have split the questions into four sections:

- caring for someone during treatment
- work arrangements
- caring for someone at home
- finances.

If you are self-employed, our booklet Self-employment and cancer (see page 18) has more information about dealing with work issues relevant to you. It is written for people with cancer, but you may face some of the same problems.

How to use this leaflet

The questions you need to ask and when you ask them will depend on your situation. You may need to ask some questions earlier or later than suggested in this leaflet. You can decide what works for you.

Next to each question, there is a list of people or places you can go to for answers.

✔ A large tick shows a service or person who is most likely to be able to answer your question.

✔ A small tick shows a service or person who may also be able to help.

At the back of this leaflet, there are blank pages for notes (pages 26 to 27). You could use these pages to help you remember what questions you need to ask, and write down what you find out.

Quotes

In this leaflet, we have included a quote from Prue, who is on the cover. She cared for her husband Dave when he was diagnosed with prostate cancer. To share your experience, visit macmillan.org.uk/shareyourstory

Services we mention

There are a lot of services that may be able to help answer your questions. On the next page, we list the services we mention in this leaflet.
• Oncology team – this is the cancer team at the hospital. It may include oncologists, radiologists and cancer nurses. In some services, it may also include a social worker.

• GP services – this is your doctor’s surgery.

• Occupational health professionals – these may include workplace health and safety advisers, nurses, physiotherapists, counsellors, and GPs. They may not be available at every workplace. Your work may offer an external occupational health service. You can find out more from your employer or HR manager.

• Line manager – this is your manager at work.

• HR manager – this is someone in the human resources or recruitment team at your work.

• Advisory services – these are organisations that offer guidance, including help resolving work disputes (see pages 20 to 25).

• Charities and support groups – these may include a Macmillan work support adviser, other cancer support charities (see pages 20 to 25), carers’ organisations (see pages 24 to 25), local support groups and online forums.

• Unions – these are trade or labour unions that you may be a member of.

• Social services – these are services provided by the government to help people in need. They can include help at home, such as shopping or cleaning, care at home or specialist equipment.

This leaflet has questions you may need to ask about work issues if you are a working carer. A working carer is anyone who works while providing unpaid support to a partner, family member or friend with cancer, who could not manage without this support.

Balancing working and caring responsibilities is not always easy. We hope this leaflet makes you feel more confident about dealing any workplace issues you might have.

We’re here to help everyone with cancer live life as fully as they can, providing physical, financial and emotional support. So whatever cancer throws your way, we’re right there with you. For information, support or just someone to talk to, call 0808 808 00 00 (7 days a week, 8am to 8pm) or visit macmillan.org.uk
